The Faces of Generosity and the Power of Giving

Faith, family, and community form the heart of Tim and Kathy Wiles' work through The Brian and Patricia Giese Foundation. Guided by the belief that transformation begins with compassion and connection, the Wiles family has become an extraordinary partner to Everstand, advancing programs that restore hope for children and families across our communities.

"When we first learned about Everstand's programs, what stood out immediately was the emphasis on holistic care—supporting mental, emotional, and spiritual well-being together," shared Tim and Kathy. "That approach reflects our belief that healing and transformation happen when you see the whole person, not just their immediate need."

Through The Brian and Patricia Giese Foundation, the Wiles family has supported Everstand's Outpatient Mental Health Clinic, with special interest in initiatives like the Parent Support Group and Therapeutic Drum Circle. These programs bring families together in ways that transcend traditional therapy—creating safe spaces for emotional healing, relationship building, and community strength.

"The Parent Support Group and the Therapeutic Drum Circle are perfect examples," the Wiles' explained. "They meet families where they are, providing evidence-based care that restores relationships, builds confidence, and strengthens community bonds. That kind of work is what we're honored to invest in—because it creates ripples of hope that go beyond one program or one grant."

Their connection to Everstand is also deeply personal. Friends of the Wiles family experienced Everstand's trauma-informed therapy and parent coaching firsthand—an experience that left a lasting impression. "The growth in daily function, the renewed connection between parent and child — it was remarkable. That personal experience reaffirmed for us that Everstand isn't just doing good work, they're helping to change lives."

For the Wiles family, philanthropy is an act of faith in action. "Our foundation's mission is bold—we invest in faith-inspired ideas with the power to change the world. These programs give families the practical tools to rebuild, but also restore something deeper—hope. That's what we want to be part of."
